RE: Open Energy Analyst Position

Dear East Daley Analytics Team,

I am extremely interested in the Energy Analyst position that East Daley Analytics is advertising. My enthusiasm for sustainable technology, coupled with my soon-to-be Bachelor of Science in Business Economics with minors in Sustainability and Data Analytics, prompted me to send my resume to you as soon as possible in the hope that we can further discuss my qualifications and excitement for this position and your company in general.

As an analytics gladiator, I enjoy working through sets of data to uncover unique insights that drive meaningful conclusions. I am a detail-oriented problem solver with a relentless curiosity to dig deeper and meet client needs. In addition to my strong academic background, I have valuable research and project development success, both as a Corporate Quality Engineer at Seagate Technology and from conducting mass consumerism and university student retention research. Currently, in my final environmental studies course, I am looking at Minneapolis urban solar capacity and analyzing logistics for implementing renewable energy large scale. Among these projects, I've also conducted EH&S audits at Seagate of the company's environmental practices and updated multiple Corporate Standard Operating Procedures. With all these hats, I've further developed my data analysis and cross functional communication abilities, earning an invitation to work where my passion really lies, on the Employees & Sustainability Forum.

With an advanced level of proficiency in Excel and PowerPoint, I am confident that I can contribute to EDA's mission of bringing transparency to the energy sector. I am excited about the opportunity to work in a fast-paced and entrepreneurial environment that requires flexible thinking and adaptability based on client and market needs.

The posting for a Portfolio Management Analyst position states that relentless curiosity and a strong foundation are key qualities in a successful candidate. I know my background and passion for companies like yours dedicated to addressing the growing crisis our generation and all future generations face can add substantial value and passion to East Daley Analytics. My resume is enclosed for your consideration. Thank you for your time, and I look forward to hearing from you soon. Please feel free to contact me at (651)955-8062 or at
